POEM

written by Cindy Null

I know who I am though I am not the person I used to be.
I know where I am though I don't remember where I was yesterday.

From what I've been told I am headed on a journey, and I really can't comprehend why.

Little do I know that this journey will last my lifetime.

I don't need to pack for this journey, so they tell me, all I need is the love and support of my family.

I heard that the journey is mostly uphill, that there are twists and turns, with no turning back, bridges to cross, that at times my family will end up carrying me and that I will never return.

My family is making this journey with me until our paths part as they encourage me to take flight into the light above.

I will leave loving my family as much as they each love me, and I will live on in their hearts and in their memories.

A bouquet of purple roses is shown in the upper right corner of the page. The roses are in various stages of bloom, with some fully open and others as buds. They are set against a light-colored wooden background with a visible grain. The overall lighting is soft and natural.

POEM
If I Had A Voice

If I had a voice today, I'd say,
dear ones, please don't cry.
Still love me but don't grieve for me,
it's easy if you try.
Don't think of all that I won't see,
just think of what I've seen.
Think not of places I won't go, but remember where I've been.
I've lived, I've loved, I've laughed, I've cried.
I've worked hard, that's for sure.
I've done my best, I'm satisfied,
I couldn't ask for more.
I know not what becomes of me,
nor what's beyond today.
If I had a choice, I'd use my voice,
but alas I've gone away.
You have memories of me to enjoy,
smile, laugh, be tough.
You have loved me and enriched my life,
I was happy, that's enough!

A bouquet of purple roses is positioned in the upper right corner of the page. The roses are in various stages of bloom, with some fully open and others as buds. They are set against a background of light-colored wood grain. The overall aesthetic is soft and elegant.
