Poem
written by Jean Brown

When the sun goes down after a long, hot day,
Children have gone home from play,
The air is very mild and sweet,
Mist is rising round my feet.
In the distance a cry from a wild goose,
He must be the last one to go to roost.
A stillness creeps across the lake,
The tawny owl is now awake.
The moon is peeping through the long, tall pines,
Cold shivers run along my spine.
Bats are now flying, aroused from their sleep,
Rabbits out playing hide and seek.
In a clearing ahead a deer so rare,
Proud and handsome standing there
Till dawn will break, a new day will start,
Tranquillity - yet life in Clumber Park.

A magical forest scene with a fairy and glowing lights. The background is a dense forest of green foliage and mushrooms, illuminated by numerous small, warm, glowing lights that create a soft, ethereal atmosphere. In the center, a fairy with large, translucent, veined wings and a crown of flowers is walking away from the viewer. She is wearing a blue and gold dress with a long, flowing skirt. Her arms are outstretched, and she appears to be in motion. The overall mood is serene and dreamlike.

Poem

Afterglow

by Helen Lowrie Marshall

I'd like the memory of me
To be a happy one.

I'd like to leave an afterglow
Of smiles when life is done.

I'd like to leave an echo,
Whispering softly down the ways,
Of happy times and laughing times
And bright and sunny days.

I'd like the tears of those who grieve
To dry before the sun
Of happy memories
That I leave when life is done.
