PROCESSIONAL MUSIC

Comfortably Numb
by Pink Floyd

A person with white hair, seen from the back, stands on a sandy beach looking out at the ocean. The water is a vibrant turquoise color, and the sky is a clear, bright blue. The person is wearing dark shorts. The overall scene is peaceful and evocative of a quiet moment of reflection.

Sometimes we sit quietly Reflecting for a while,
Imagining your voice, your face,
Your warm and loving smile.
For it's so lovely to recall
The happy times we had
When you played such a special role Both as Husband and Dad.
At this every special time
We only wish you knew
That we'd give all the world today
For one more hour with you.
But we still have our memories
And since we've been apart,
It comforts us so much to know
That you're right here in our hearts.

POEM

You Don't Just Lose Someone Once

You lose them over and over, sometimes many times a day.
When the loss, momentarily forgotten,
creeps up,
and attacks you from behind.

Fresh waves of grief as the realisation hits home,
they are gone.

Again.

You don't just lose someone once,
you lose them every time you open your eyes to a new dawn,
and as you awaken,
so does your memory,
so does the jolting bolt of lightning that rips into your heart,
they are gone.

Again.

A person is standing on a sandy beach, looking out at the ocean. The water is a mix of light blue and green, with white foam from waves breaking. In the background, there is a large, dark rock formation. The sky is a clear, light blue. The overall scene is peaceful and serene.

Losing someone is a journey, not a one-off.

There is no end to the loss,
there is only a learned skill on how to stay afloat, when it washes over.

Be kind to those who are sailing this stormy sea,
they have a journey ahead of them, and a daily shock to the system each time they realise,
they are gone,
Again.

You don't just lose someone once,
you lose them every day for a lifetime.
