Poem

Hope Is The Thing With Feathers
by Emily Dickinson

Hope is the thing with feathers
That perches in the soul,
And sings the tune without the words,
And never stops at all;
And sweetest in the gale is heard,
And sore must be the storm
That could abash the little bird
That kept so many warm.
I've heard it in the chillest land,
And on the strangest sea;
Yet, never, in extremity,
It asked a crumb of me.

These Boots Are Made For Walkin'
by Nancy Sinatra

Poem

written by Peter's niece, Natalie

I know today the day has come when I'm not by your side,
And your soul is full of sorrow and a million tears you've cried.

But if you look around you then you'll see that I'm not gone,
For though I'm not here with you, my love for you lives on.

I'm there in every story told and the memories you recall,
And I'll still be by your side each time to catch you when you fall.

I know right now it seems so hard and I wish that I was there
To tell you it will be ok and to chase away the fear.

But not even death can part us, it's just the body gone;
The laughter, joy and love we shared will still keep going on.

So don't let the tears that are falling replace the happiness we knew,
For I will live forever inside the hearts of all of you.
