The Dance Of Life

We all enter the dance of life when we are born.

We take to the floor and those already dancing
stretch out a hand to us and teach us the steps and we start to move.

Sometimes making small steps, feeling self conscious and awkward, at other times making grand gestures and sweeping moves.

As we dance around the floor, we reach out to new dancers.
They may be the awkward and tread on our toes, or hold us too tightly,
but if we are lucky, we find the partner who dances to the same time and we keep them for life.

Some dance for many years, some only days, and all of us,
as our time comes to its end, eventually, in death,
we leave the floor as the music goes quiet for us.
But all around us, the dance goes on as others try out their first,
tentative steps.

REFLECTION

I imagine you dancing,
Skipping among the clouds,
Happily singing with the angels,
Looking down upon the crowds.

I imagine you laughing,
Your heart lovingly set free.
You understand my grief
In ways I cannot see.

I imagine you greeting
The others that I love
Who sadly left this earth
For a home with you above.

I imagine you watching
The many things I do,
Proudly standing beside me
As I remember and honour you.

All these visions give me hope
That death is not the end,
That an eternity awaits us
That together we will spend.
