Reading

When A Bud Becomes A Rose
written and read by Stuart Page

Silver will meet her gold;
When a feather appears,
 Angels are near.
 You're by their side,
 And will always abide.
 You gave us your best,
 And now you're at rest.
 You have gone far away,
But in our hearts you will stay.
 When we look to the skies
 With tears in our eyes,
 Our fears melt away
Because we all hear you say - I love you.
 I have nothing left to say,
 Because you're gone away,
But in our hearts you are here,
 So we know you are near.

Reflection Music
Für Elise - Beethoven

Closing Words and Reading
Psalm 23

Closing Music
More Than This - Roxy Music

The committal will now follow in the cemetery.

You are invited to join the family at the Goose at Gamston, after the service today, to share your stories of Sylvia's life.

There will also be a collection as we leave the service for the British Red Cross.
