POEM
The Measure Of A Man

Not how did he die, but how did he live?
Not what did he gain, but what did he give?
These are the things that measure the worth
Of a man as a man, regardless of birth.
Not what was his station, but had he a heart?
And how did he play his God-given part?
Was he ever ready with a word of good cheer?
To bring back a smile, to banish a tear?
Not what was his church, not what was his creed,
But had he befriended those really in need?
Not what did the sketch in the newspaper say,
But how many were sorry when he passed away?
These are the things that measure the worth
Of a man as a man, regardless of birth.

A wide, sandy beach stretches from the foreground into the distance, meeting the ocean. The sand is a light tan color with some darker, wet patches near the water's edge. The ocean is a pale blue-grey, with gentle waves and white foam washing onto the shore. The sky is a clear, light blue, filled with soft, white, fluffy clouds. The overall scene is peaceful and serene.
