WELCOME AND INTRODUCTION

WORDS ON GRIEF

POEM
If I Should Go

If I should go before you, and we must say farewell
Please don't mourn me for too long, but try to laugh as well

Laugh about the happy times, and let the sad times go.
Fill your hearts with joyful thoughts, for life's too short you know

Speak of me with fondness and recall our special days
Hold dear those happy memories that time cannot erase

Break not a flower nor inscribe a stone, or speak in a Sunday voice
But be the usual selves I know, be happy and rejoice

Walk again the paths we trod, not with a heavy heart
Don't close the door upon my life, because we have to part

In your heart and in mine too
Our memories will live on

Be happy that our lives we shared, on sadness do not dwell
Weep if you must for parting now but laugh and sing as well.

DEREK'S STORY

TRIBUTE TO GRANDAD

written by Marissa

Grandad,
A man with a stubbly chin,
and a collection of Whisky and Gin,
Lots of old maps and books and charms and antiques for luck, Coins of copper, silver and gold and in his head lots of stories to be told,
He likes to go fishing near the seaside,
and from his caravan he watches the tide.
