

A Celebration of the Life of

Donald William Tyson

22nd September 1928 - 20th August 2020

The background of the page features a soft, warm glow of light yellow and orange, suggesting a bright sun or a clear autumn day. In the upper left and right corners, there are several large, detailed leaves in shades of brown and orange, some with prominent veins, creating a seasonal and natural aesthetic.

POEM

The Last Journey
by Timothy Coote
read by Andy

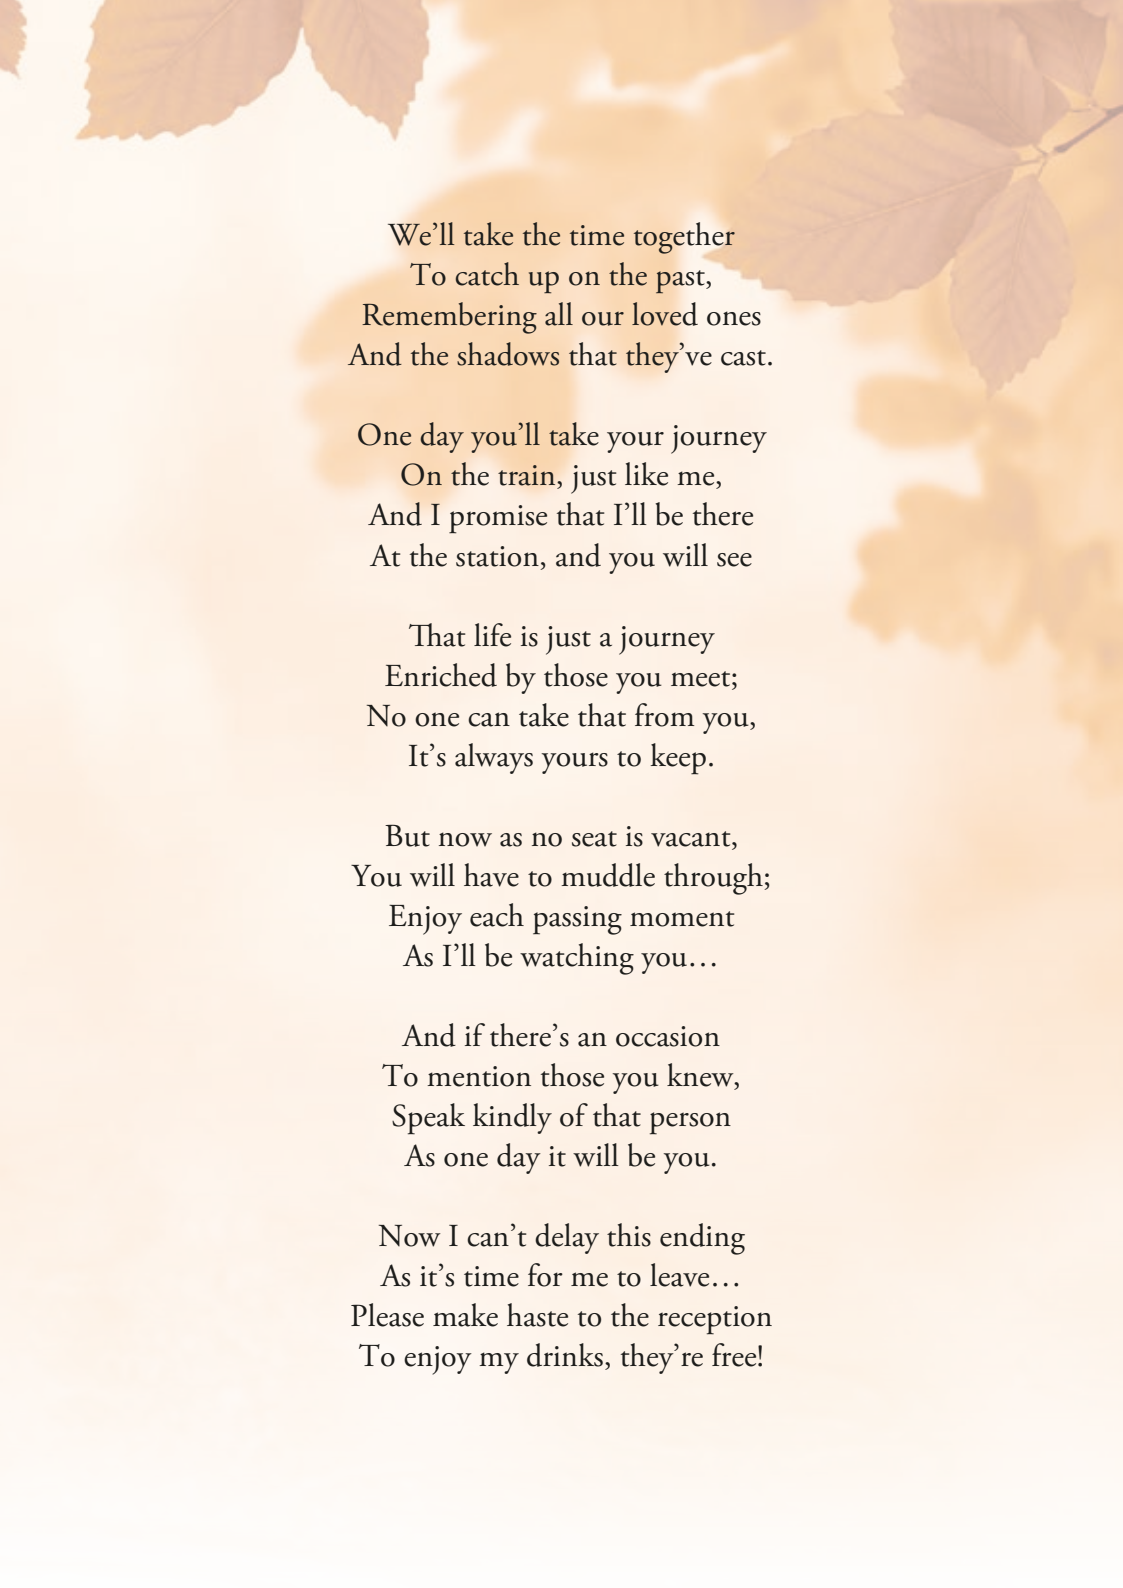

There is a train at the station
With a seat reserved just for me.
I'm excited about its destination
As there's lots for me to see.

The trials and tribulations,
The pain and stress we breathe
Don't exist where I am going -
Only happiness, I believe.

I know that you are here
To wish me on my way,
It's not a journey you can join in;
It's not your time today.

There'll be many destinations -
Some are happy, some are sad,
Each one a brief reminder
Of the great times that we've had.

Many friends I know are waiting
Who took an earlier train,
To greet and reassure me
And walk me down that lane.

The background of the page is a soft, warm-toned image of autumn leaves. The leaves are in various shades of light brown, tan, and pale orange, with some showing detailed vein patterns. They are scattered across the page, with some larger leaves in the upper corners and smaller, more blurred ones in the center and lower areas, creating a gentle, nostalgic atmosphere.

We'll take the time together
To catch up on the past,
Remembering all our loved ones
And the shadows that they've cast.

One day you'll take your journey
On the train, just like me,
And I promise that I'll be there
At the station, and you will see

That life is just a journey
Enriched by those you meet;
No one can take that from you,
It's always yours to keep.

But now as no seat is vacant,
You will have to muddle through;
Enjoy each passing moment
As I'll be watching you...

And if there's an occasion
To mention those you knew,
Speak kindly of that person
As one day it will be you.

Now I can't delay this ending
As it's time for me to leave...
Please make haste to the reception
To enjoy my drinks, they're free!
