The Dash

I read of a man who stood to speak
At the funeral of a friend,
He referred to the dates on the tombstone,
From the beginning to the end.

He noted that first came the date of birth
And spoke the following date with tears,
But he said what mattered most of all
Was the dash between those years,

For that dash represents all the time
That they spent alive on earth,
And now only those who loved them
Know what that little line is worth.

For it matters not how much we own,
The cars, the house, the cash,
What matters is how we live and love
And how we spend our dash.

A misty forest path with sunlight filtering through the trees. The path is lined with tall, thin trees, and the ground is covered in fallen leaves and shadows. The overall atmosphere is serene and contemplative.

So think about this long and hard,
Are there things you'd like to change?
For you never know how much time is left
That can still be rearranged.

If we could just slow down enough
To consider what's true and real
And always try to understand
The way other people feel.

And be less quick to anger
And show appreciation more
And love the people in our lives
Like we've never loved before.

If we treat each other with respect
And more often wear a smile,
Remembering that this special dash
May only last a while.

DAD

We have always had your love and support, your kindness and laughter. We promise to always talk about you, about the ridiculous situations you managed to get yourself into, and how entertaining you were.

Every time we use our hands to speak we will remember where that comes from, and when we find funny in the ridiculous we will think of you too.

We will always speak to our children about you.

We will never stop telling stories - sharing memories and continuing to add adventure to all of our lives.

We are proud of you. The love we all hold for you will remain.

“People will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel.”
